San Francisco, Calif. – April 17, 2009 – Stitcher announced this week that it has been nominated in the Best Mobile News category for the 13th Annual Webby Awards.

Hailed as the "Internet's highest honor" by The New York Times, The Webby Award is the leading international award honoring excellence on the Internet.

Stitcher streams on-demand news and audio shows to mobile devices, without syncing or wires. Stitcher works with a wide variety of key content and publishing partners to provide well-rounded, up-to-date content. It is free to consumers and easy to use and personalize.

"Nominees like Stitcher are setting the standard for innovation and creativity on the Internet," said David-Michel Davies, executive director of the Webby Awards. "It is an incredible achievement to be selected among the best from the nearly 10,000 entries we received this year."

"We are very proud to receive this nomination alongside industry leaders and fellow nominees: The New York Times, NPR, BBC and The Associated Press." Stitcher CEO and cofounder, Noah Shanok stated.

As a nominee, Stitcher is also eligible to win a Webby People's Voice Award, which is selected online by the global Web community. From now until April 30th, Stitcher fans can cast their votes in The Webby People's Voice Awards at <http://pv.webbyawards.com>.

Winners will be announced on May 5th, 2009 and honored at a star-studded ceremony in New York City on June 8th.

The Webby Awards is presented by the International Academy of Digital Arts and Sciences, a 650-person judging academy whose members include Internet co-inventor Vinton Cerf, R/GA's Chief Bob Greenberg, "Simpson's" creator Matt Groening, Arianna Huffington, and Harvey Weinstein.
